

ITOP 4-2-828

BALISTIC SHOCK TESTING

SCOPE

This ITOP describes procedures for measuring ballistic shock produced in armoured vehicles by hostile attack. The hostile attack can come from any number of the following threats: mines, explosives, detonation of reactive armour, perforating projectiles, impact of non-perforating projectiles on or near the vehicle, and in general any battlefield threat that produces severe shock in vehicles.